DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. The indicated allowability of claims 32 and 33 are withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Kim et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,455,912 B1). Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 32 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kim et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,455,912 B1) in view of Puchner et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,144,076).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claim 32 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kim et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,455,912).

In re claim 32, Kim (Fig. 4) discloses a semiconductor device, comprising:

An active area formed in a semiconductor substrate; and

An isolation structure comprising at least one dielectric material (108) disposed within a trench which extends into said semiconductor substrate, wherein said isolation structure substantially surrounds said active area, wherein at least a portion of said isolation structure is adapted to modify stresses incurred on said active area (Summary of the Invention, lines 39-56), and wherein said isolation structure comprises a tensile stress-inducing dielectric material (column 4, lines 40-41) disposed within said at least a portion of said trench.

Kim discloses the STI regions surrounding an active area (column 1, lines 29-33), but does not expressly disclose the active area comprising nMOS transistors. Puchner discloses STI regions (10) surrounding nMOS and pMOS transistors. It would have been obvious for one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to use nMOS and pMOS transistors as disclosed by Puchner for the active area of Kim for the purpose, for example, of enhancing the versatility of the active region.

In re claim 33, Kim in view of Puchner discloses the device of claim 32, wherein said active area includes a width and wherein said isolation structure comprises at least a portion of said trench having a depth such that an aspect ratio of said trench portion depth to said active area width is greater than about 0.5. The ratio is interpreted to mean that the depth of the trench over the width of the active area is greater than about 0.5; meaning that the width of the active area is about twice the depth of the trench. Puchner discloses (column 2, lines 60-67; column 3, lines 1-

8) a trench depth that may be varied. When the trench is at a shallow depth, the aspect ratio will be within the claimed range.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 34-40, previously objected to and rewritten in independent form to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims, are allowed.
